

Dirty Dancing Tops Cheesiest Film of All Time

The British public has voted 80s classic Dirty Dancing the cheesiest film of all time. The pole, commissioned by Original Dutch Edam to celebrate the start of the Cannes Film Festival, found the Patrick Swayze hit to be the number one film we secretly love to indulge in.

Pretty Woman, the movie that propelled Julia Roberts into Hollywood stardom, came in a close second, followed by the musical hit Mamma Mia!

Cheesy lines were also polled and Andy McDowell received a whopping 40% of the vote for her corny line from box-office hit Four Weddings & a Funeral. "Is it raining? I hadn't notice." Declared the American actress while standing in a puddle in the midst of a downpour. The infamous 'Nobody puts Baby in the corner' line from Dirty Dancing took 37% of the votes and came in second place. .

Loveable Brit actor Hugh Grant topped the list for cheesiest on screen actor and everyone's favourite Friends' star, Jennifer Aniston, took home the crown for the cheesiest actress.

Popcorn was voted the favourite movie snack. However given recent revelations about the high number of calories in cinema-bought popcorn, the public might want to follow in the steps of the 13% that preferred to munch on cheese and with Dutch Edam containing 25% less fat and 14% more calcium than cheddar it is a healthier option for all cinema lovers.

A spokesperson for Original Dutch Edam wedge and ball said: "As the Cannes Film Festival launches, we couldn't help but ask the UK what their favourite cheesy film of all time was! Not everyone likes to admit it but we all have our secret love for a good old cheesy movie."
